

Typography examples

Do:

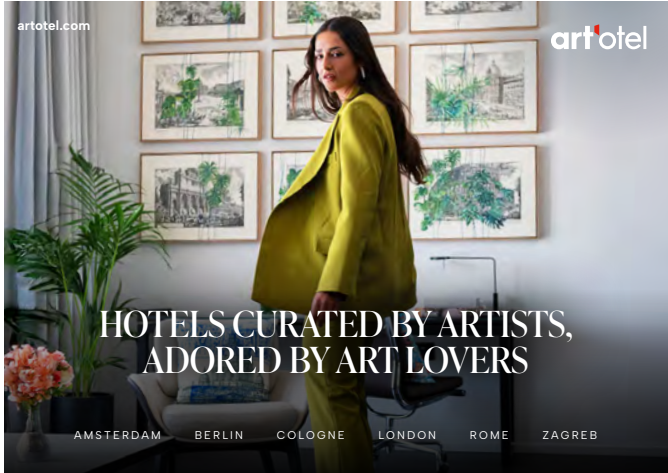

- All copy should read horizontally.
- Copy should ordinarily be aligned left.
- Copy can also be centred where appropriate, for example on small operational items and on assets where the headline is the hero.
- Write 'Signature Artist' always with initial capitals.
- Use coloured copy sparingly. Headlines and sub-headers can be used in the relevant localised colour on localised items, or in the neutral colourway.

Do not:

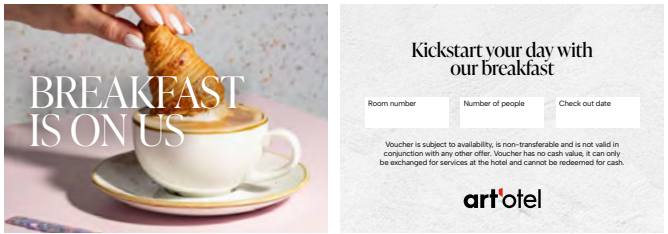

- Mix how copy is positioned (eg. do not centre the heading and align body copy to left).
- Vary the size of headlines.
- Use vertical text.
- Use capitals for subtitles, subheadings, captions and/or body copy.
- Use right-aligned copy.

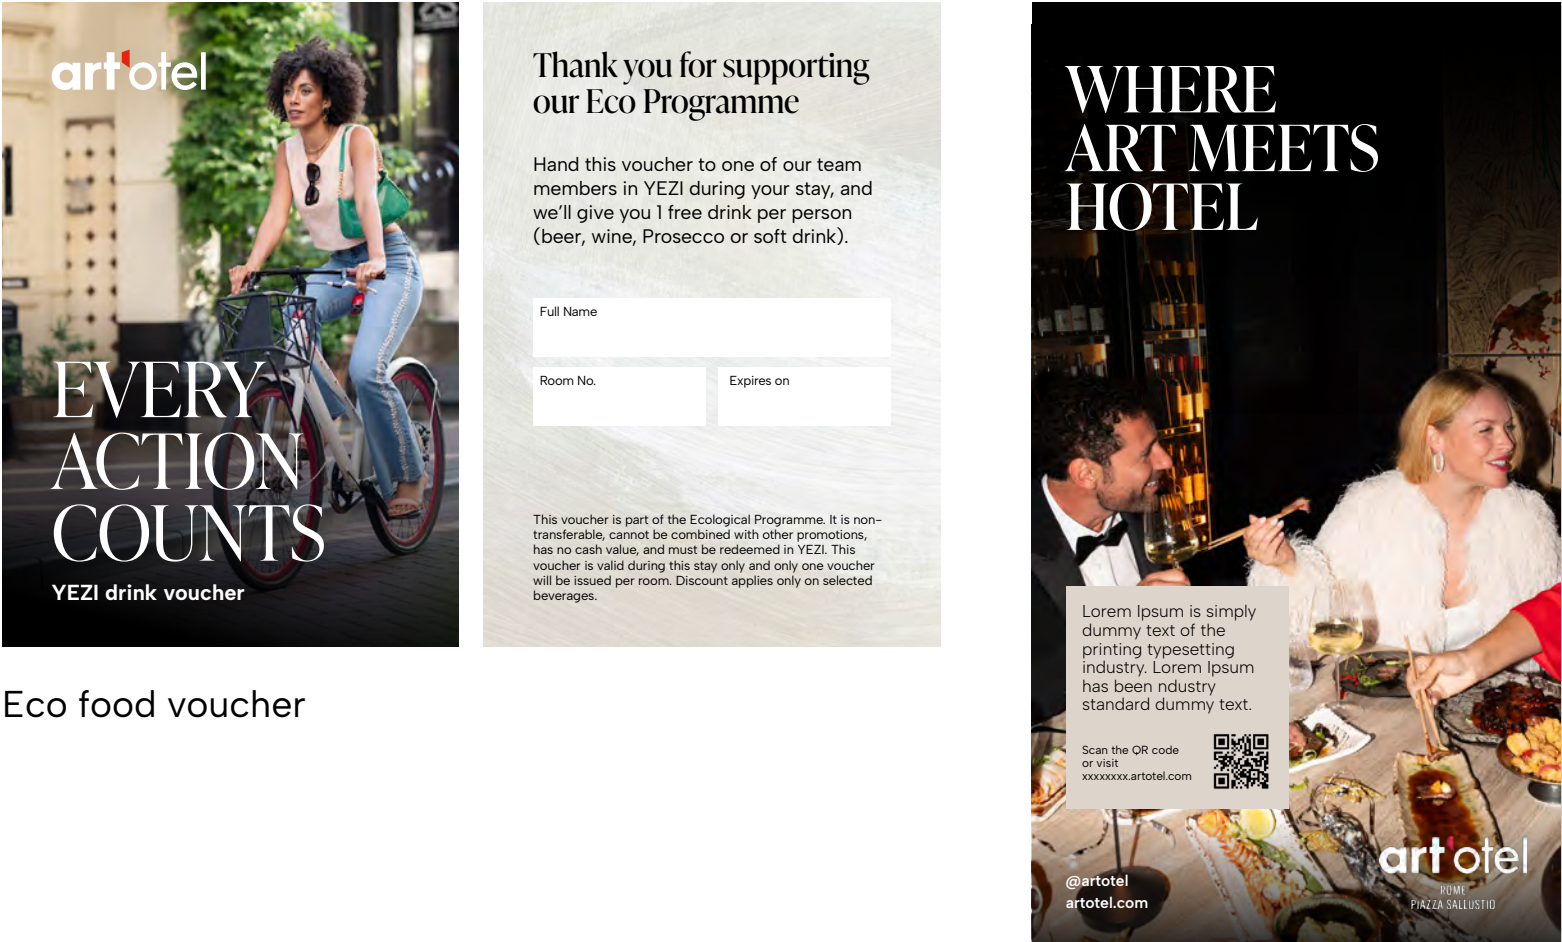

Hotel factsheet with localised colour

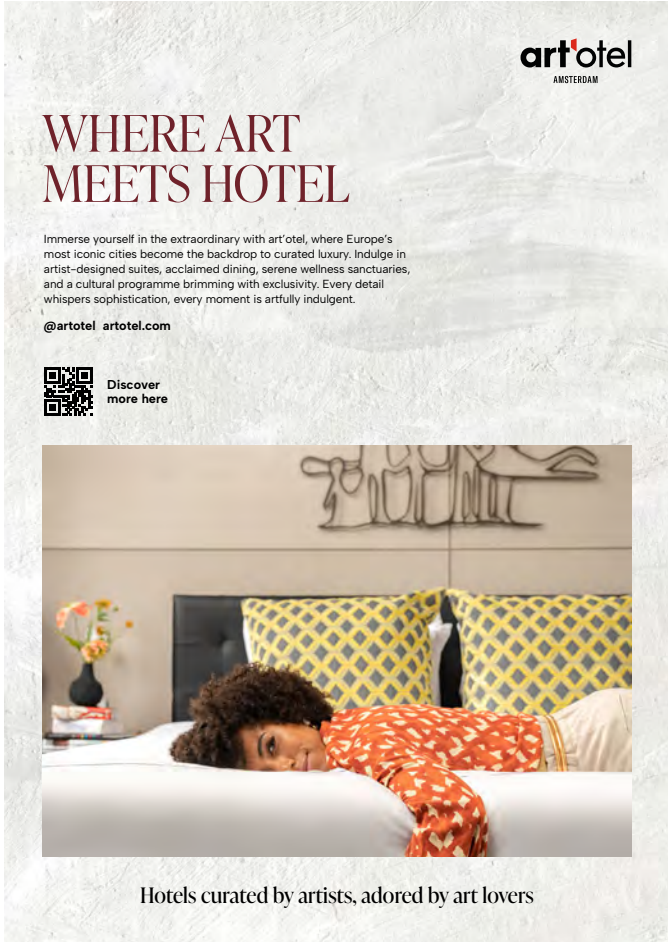

A5 print advertisement

Breakfast voucher

Eco food voucher

Digital flyer with localised colour

Dual language items

Dual language items are available in our brand catalogue. If new dual-language items need to be created, they should follow the following format:

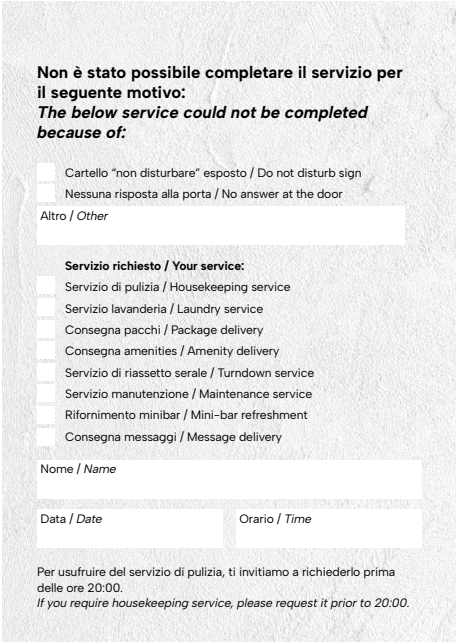

- Where a headline is used, the main headline appears in English only.
- For body copy, the native language should always appear first.
- The English translation should appear after the native language.
- The English translation should appear in italics. For those items where the text is separated (for example on a two sided item), both can appear in the regular text.
- Where an English translation appears after a caps header, the English translation should appear in sentence case.

Do not:

- Use Ivy Presto Display Italic in caps.

English headline with dual language body copy

Use of sentence case italic English translation

Card inner with separate languages in the same font style

English headline with dual language body copy

01
TONE OF VOICE

05

What is our tone of voice?

Every word counts. As a hotel with a premium identity and large personality, our words are a huge part of the brand and guest experience. The words we choose can delight, inspire and build trust.

Our brand voice in 3 words:

Clever. Cultured. Clear.

The art'otel tone of voice is polished but avoiding pompousness. Confident but never arrogant or clichéd. Intelligent without over-explaining. Sophisticated, selective and design-aware. Always saying more with less.

Our tone of voice should:

Express our bold, creative and original personality. Educate and inspire.

Above all, be clear and concise.

Like our art, our words help us stand out.

Do:

- Lead with feeling and atmosphere.
- Be visually evocative and editorial in tone.
- Write with a sharp, art-aware lexicon.
- Balance warmth with sophistication.
- Keep it smart, sensory and stylish.

Do not:

- Use overused luxury clichés (e.g., “opulent,” “world-class,” “breathtaking”).
- Be overly chatty or emoji-driven.
- Try to be funny for the sake of it.
- Over-sell or over-explain.
- Sound like a brochure.

Clever.
Cultured.
Clear.

Copy principles

How we sound is as important as how our hotels look. We're a modern, luxurious and inspiring arts and lifestyle hotel concept and our tone of voice should reflect that. When we're talking to our customers and to each other, people should know it's us from the very first sentence. Clever. Cultured. Clear.

Be clever

Be original. If your copy sounds familiar, switch it up.

If you've heard it before, elevate it. We aim to be as original as the artists who inspire us – unmistakably ourselves from the very first line. Creativity with intelligence sits at the core of our voice: expressive, culturally attuned and guided by a refined sensibility.

We use wit with confidence, letting subtle wordplay reveal our personality without ever overpowering it. Trade tired, generic adjectives for language with energy and flavour. Choose the unexpected. Infuse your copy with imagination and a touch of lightness – but always with elegance.

Keep it natural, polished and sophisticated. Resist the urge to over embellish; too many jokes or puns can dilute the message. Smart, stylish restraint is what makes our words memorable.

Examples

“Experimental escapism. Book before you over think it.”

“Spring’s finest moments, artfully crafted and yours to claim.”

“Stay. Shape. Unwind. Reveal.”

“Stay with art, and indulge the heart.”

“Where staying with art becomes nourishment for the soul.”

“Savour the memories.”

“Memories worth lingering over.”

“Embrace the full experience.”

“Go further. Feel more. Live it fully.”

Be cultured

We're in the know.

Our guests choose us because we're cultured and invite them to be a part of our community. We're in the know about the arts, food, culture, as well as what's trending in our cities. We speak about them with confidence without being arrogant. That means educating, informing and inspiring guests while always leaving room for personal discovery. We champion our community and welcome others openly to it. We are confident using slang with polish and expertise to connect when needed.

Our messaging should do more than convey information. It should engage and inspire with original references.

Examples

“Discover hotels that have mastered the art.”

“Turn your city break into a masterpiece.”

“Make your city stay a work of art.”

“Where the city break becomes an artful experience.”

“The room is clear. Time for a refresh.”

“You drop it off. We'll take care of the rest.”

“Picture perfect.”

“Food for thought” / “Plates with a point of view.”

Be clear

There's beauty in simplicity.

If you can be anything, be clear. What's the point in a clever turn of phrase if it doesn't land an important message?

We get straight to the point and strip away anything that doesn't need to be there. That means going out of our way to make complex things simple. We respect our guests' time and make information easy to understand. We're an international brand and need to communicate effortlessly and effectively with guests from every corner of the globe.

Our creativity should never come at the cost of clarity. If a guest needs to read something twice, we've missed the mark.

Don't overthink it. There's beauty in simplicity.

Examples

“Order food and drink in an instant.”

“Sorry, now isn't a good time.”

“Grab the popcorn, it's movie night.”

“Let's get physical. Choose from the gym, the pool, or the spa.”

“Please knock later.”

Checklists

Although not exhaustive, this list has been devised to give an idea of the kind of vocabulary we can use to inject greater personality into the way we speak.

- Is your copy unexpected and original?
- Will it make your guests smile or pause for thought?
- Does it connect or encourage a conversation?
- Does it land your message clearly?

Be clever

- Be original. If your copy sounds familiar, switch it up.
- Make unexpected choices.
- Balance wit with warmth.
- Use little details to make a big impact.
- Look for little wins – turn something simple into something special.
- Know when to play it straight.
- Avoid empty adjectives and marketing clichés.

Less this:	More this:
The suite of your dreams	Suite dreams are made of this
Masterpiece Suite – The perfect luxury city break hideaway	Masterpiece Suite – The clue’s in the name
Room with a view	The best seat in the house
Say I do with a view	Get hitched without a hitch
Discover this hidden gem	The city’s worst-kept secret
Thank you for your order	Food’s on its way
Welcome back	Nice to see you again
How did we do?	Thoughts?
Your reservation is confirmed	You booked it!

Be cultured

- We’re in the know.
- It’s about knowing why, not just what.
- Stay current, not trendy.
- Balance expertise with approachability.
- Do your research.
- Champion your community and city.

- Think this:
- Our Signature Artist D*Face, A.K.A. ‘the sticker king of London’.
- There’s a reason everyone orders the Cesanese.
- The bakery locals can find blindfolded.
- Really, you had to be there.
- Ask for the house negroni.

Be clear

- There’s beauty in simplicity.
- Lead with what matters. Ask yourself: ‘What does my reader care about most?’.
- Break up long information.
- Don’t hide behind buzzwords.
- Avoid hospitality jargon and acronyms.
- Write in active voice.
- Go easy on exclamation marks.
- Swap formality for more everyday words.

Less this:	More this:
Please note that check-in begins at 15:00	Check-in: 15:00
Due to a private event tonight, JOIA will not have any availability for food or drinks until 21:00. We’d like to apologise for any inconvenience.	Sorry, we’re having a private party right now. Join us again after 21:00.
Lift out of order due to technical issues. Sorry for any inconvenience.	We know, it’s totally out of order. We’re on it.
Wet paint on railings. Please avoid.	Wet paint! Hands off.
A luxury lifestyle hotel	The hotel on everyone’s lips
Our latest boutique hotel	Our latest masterpiece
Amenities	Includes
Wellness facilities	Gym and spa
Public spaces	Social spaces
F&B	Food & Drink
PAX	People