Our Logo

Our Logo

This distinctive wordmark has been designed specifically for tempdent.

Details over the next few pages will show the variations of the logo and advice on where to use it as well as the do's and don'ts of how to display it.

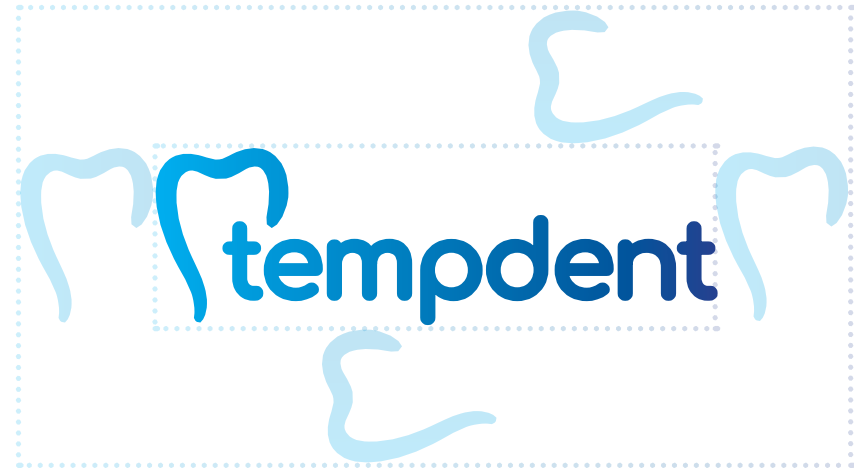

Clear space

To ensure maximum clarity of the identity on printed material, it is essential to avoid crowding it with other visual elements. An exclusion zone has been created to help protect the identity from this problem. No type or graphic element should intrude into this established zone.

The exclusion zone unit of measurement is based upon the dimensions of the 'tooth' from the wordmark.

Please note

This instruction does not imply that the identity should be protected by a boxed panel, or that elements from the brandmark be used as graphic devices.

Minimum clear space
for logo placement

Logo sizes - Print

The tempdent logo is measured and quoted in precise sizes upon its full width, edge to edge, indicated by the measure bar.

Minimum size

The minimum size for the identity in printed literature is 27mm. No identity should appear smaller than these sizes.

As a guide, we would suggest these measurements for the following document sizes:

A3 document

Identity size 70mm width

A4 document

Identity size 50mm width

A5 document

Identity size 35mm width

Logo sizes - Digital

The tempdent logo is measured and quoted in precise sizes upon its full width, edge to edge, indicated by the measure bar.

Minimum size

The minimum size for the identity on digital items is 100px. No identity should appear smaller than this.

As a guide, we would suggest that the logo is approximately 10% width of the digital asset with a minimum width of 100px. Here are the measurements for the following content sizes:

Instagram story (1080 px wide)

Identity size 110px width

Instagram post size (1200px wide)

Identity size 120px width

Google display adverts (250 px wide)

Identity size 100px width

Web banner image (728px wide)

Identity size 100px width

Logo placement

On any given format - landscape or vertical - the logo placement is on the right side.

As a guide, use the appropriate size of identity for the document (See 'Logo Sizes' on page 12) and use the following size margins as a guide around the edge of your document.

A3 document

16mm margin width

A4 document

13mm margin width

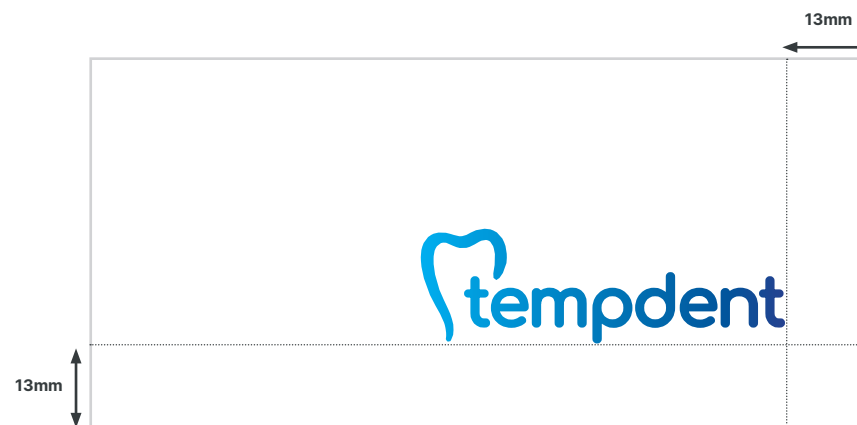

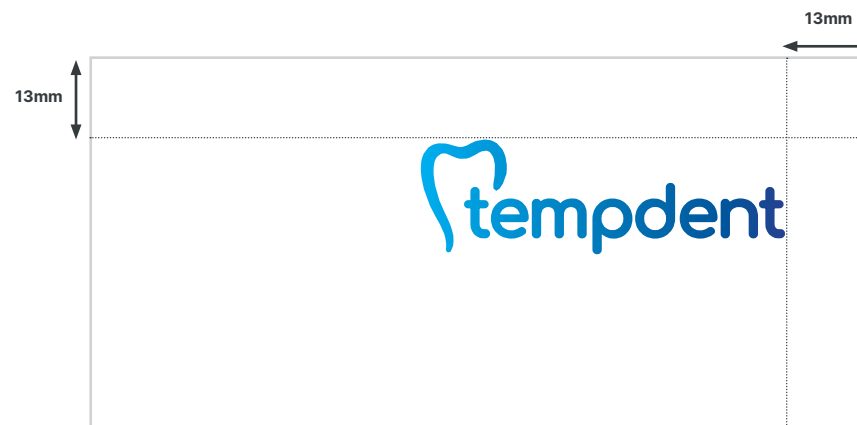

A5 document

10mm margin width

DL document

5mm margin width

For digital assets, we appreciate the margin width can be trickier so we ask the designer to use their discretion bearing in mind the 'clear space' guide on page 11.

Logo variants

- There are 4 versions of our logo:
 1. Positive
 2. Reverse for use on block colour
 3. Black and white version
 4. Reversed black and white option
- For appearing on a block colour from the brand palette, the reverse logo should be used.
- When appearing over imagery, the designers discretion can be used as to which logo is suitable; use the core logo where possible. Please consider legibility as paramount - the logo should be clear to read and positioning or retouching of the image may be required to maximise logo clarity.

What not to do

It is essential that the tempdent identity is used correctly and consistently in all applications, ensuring that the impact and recognition will not become compromised.

It is important that the identity is only ever reproduced using master artwork supplied, and that the instructions for its use are adhered to at all times. Some obvious examples illustrating what not to do are shown on this page.

DO NOT impose a panel or keyline around the identity

DO NOT rearrange the logo elements

DO NOT rotate the logo

DO NOT mix colours from the palette

DO NOT place the logo on a colour without sufficient contrast

DO NOT stretch the logo

DO NOT change the proportions between the elements

DO NOT rewrite the wordmark in different fonts

The Brand

Tone of Voice

Our writing is clean and uncomplicated, free from waffle, jargon and stuffy language.

Do

- People like the scene set so if there's an intro keep it short and concise.
- Get to the point. Check your writing for repetition or waffle and remove any parts that don't tell your reader something important.
- Try to avoid jargon, only use simple explanatory language.
- Can they understand it? If you're unsure, put yourself in the shoes of your reader - would they understand the key points?
- Make it about them, not us. Remember to always put the client, the candidate or the learner's interest or ambition first.
- Personalise it. Use 'you and 'your' instead of 'our customers' or 'the candidate'. It's more personal.
- For B2B 'client' employees are 'team members' B2C are either 'candidate or apprentice'
- Ask someone else what they think. A fresh pair of eyes will quickly point out what they find engaging and what they don't.
- Plan out what you want to say at the beginning, the middle and the end. It makes life easier.
- Use subheads. Subheadings can help signpost readers to specific content. They can also make long blocks of text look less scary.

Don't

- Use old-fashioned language – Words like 'whilst', 'amongst' and 'hitherto' can make us sound stuffy and boring. Alternatives like 'while', 'among' and 'before' fit our personality much better. Our writing engages people by talking about them.
- Use hard to understand words. We want to be approachable to everybody whether they have a Masters degree or dropped out of school early.
- Make it too chatty. Approachable doesn't mean informal or sloppy, we need to strike a balance between professional and welcoming.
- Our writing is carefully written to help people understand what we're saying.
- Forget the punctuation. Break up long sentences to give the reader chance to digest what you've said.

Our typography

We use one font with two specific weights across all of our marketing material that will be covered over the next few pages, each has specific uses and the instructions should be clearly adhered to.

We always close tracking on our headlines to ensure consistency. Leading between headline text should also be closed to approx -20.

We use Calibri for our emails and internal documents only.

Calibri is available in 3 weights.

It is recommended that Calibri is set at 11pt for communications.

Hello I'm Calibri Regular

These typefaces are already embedded into the Microsoft templates so you won't need to download any fonts.

Be sure to only use the official documentation and do not try to make your own.

Our photography

Our imagery is a key part of our brand and should be treated as significantly as the content we write about.

Images should be well composed, focussing on a diversity of people (gender, age and ethnicity). They should be relevant to our brand.

It's key to avoid white jackets, long hair should always be tied back, focus should be happy engaged subjects.

Do not use:

Clip art - It does not represent high quality and is not an ownable style.

Uninspiring imagery - Imagery should be engaging and well photographed.

Bad crops - Do not crop out the main focus of the image.

Low resolution - Images used should be no lower than 300dpi.

Busy shots without a focus - Keep compositions simple.

There will be occasions when you need to use stock photography so please choose carefully considering the following points:

- It should not feel like a stock library image
- It should be reflective of our audience, both employers and learners.
- It should reflect the diversity of our audiences.

The Marketing Team have a subscription to Adobe Stock, please contact the team for a chat about any images you may be looking for.

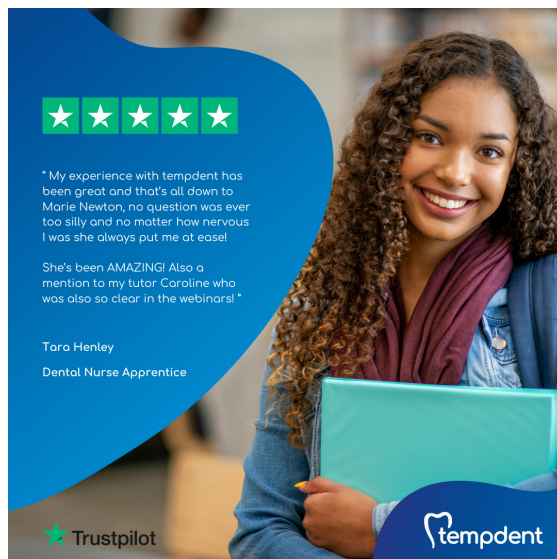

Brand elements

The tooth shape

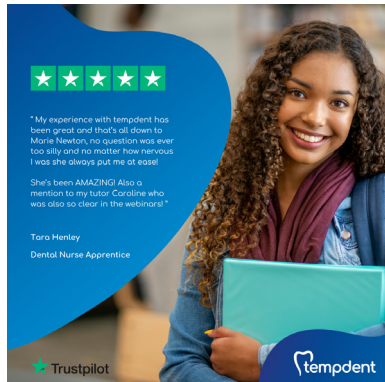

We've developed a shape from the logo that is taken from our 'tooth', this shape can be used as a device on the page to emphasise different elements of the design.

The tooth can be a background to hold text, a device combined with photography to highlight the visuals, or a container for logos on an image.

How you choose to use the device is up to you but please use these guidelines and the following pages to see some real examples to help inspire you.
